Excerpt: . . . 9 The issue of available and affordable homeowners insurance is something that everyone in this room and everyone in our community deals with on a regular basis. But the problem is with displaced homeowners desperate for relief; we all know that we have to continue to find a solution. Even with holding this hearing today, I think we understand that although the House has moved on this bill, it is now in the Senate. And with Senator Nelson and others, in a bipartisan way, we are asking those Members of the Senate to consider this bill. If they have to make some refinements to it, we welcome and are looking forward to those opportunities to make the bill even better and then to get together with the House and present it to the President for consideration. Hundreds of thousands of homeowners, not only in Florida but around the country, have been dropped, and the treatment by some insurance companies to do what has happened in Florida, between cancellations and the elevations and the tripling of premiums in some cases, has now become very relevant in other parts of the country as well, places like New York, New Jersey, and all the way down the eastern seaboard. We know about the Gulf Coast. In California - over 85 percent of the homes in California have no earth-quake insurance. Think about that. If we have a Northridge or San Francisco San Andreas Fault...
