SONGS OF AN AIRMAN: WITH A MEMOIR (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Songs of an Airman: With a Memoir These are the brief facts of Geoffrey Wall s life, and it might be enough to let his verses speak for themselves without further introduction, were it not that the author himself was from an educational point of View an interest ing human document. He came from England to an Australian public school, a small, lean, brown nipper, full of imagination and Of the sense of romance derived from contact with old and beautiful things such as we have not here in Australia. He found himself in a school society which had been working out the problem Of recon ciling the English public school ideals to the needs of a very democratic community. In this aristo-democratic atmosphere Geoffrey Wall found himself at home, but in the development Of his character Australia itself had no small share; and his home, one must believe, a greater one than either college or country. But weighing in?uences is a task better left alone. He says himself of his educa tion in writing to his father: Yet again I ought to thank you for an education which has not qualified me for a single thing, but has left me capable of qualifying for almost anything. The main thing about education is not the facts one learns, but the whole mental outlook. As far as facts are concerned I know hardly anything; Little Latin and less Greek, as Ben Jonson remarked; more literature than I thought, and a little psychology. There are, I think, the materials for quite a sound education if I ever get a chance to take it up again (and by the time this war is over...
