Excerpt from The Christian Century, Vol. 37: A Journal of Religion; July 1, 1920 It is easy for men who do not attend church to fall into the error of false assumption. A minister once addressed on invitation a group of nearly two hundred union labor 113611. He was given half an hour and courteous attention for the presentation of certain principles of religion and their application to labor problems today. Then followed three hours of radical criticism in which the church was attacked and her ministry denounced. About one a. m. He was given opportunity for such reply as he might desire to make! He affirmed that the church was dealing directly today with the labor problem and making constant contribution to its solution. He said the men before him did not know very much about the church and its contribution at this point. He challenged those who had been attending its services at any time in the last ten years, except to go to a funeral or a wedding, to stand Five men out of the two hundred stood up! What men who do not attend church know about its present ministry and message would fill volumes! They are totally unaware of the social message of its ministry and its leadership in moral progress. It is a curious thing for a man who confesses that he rarely attends preaching service and announces that he has no respect for the ministers opinion to declare that the pulpit is an anachronism and preaching not a man-sized job. It is to laugh to read his archaic description of the old-fashioned sermon and then take no account of tens of thousands...
